Jaynes Announces Retirement from CCC&TI, Receives Governor's Long Leaf Pine Award

After 40 years as an educator, Beverly Jaynes, who currently serves as Department Chair for Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute's College and Career Readiness Division (formerly known as Basic Skills), has announced her retirement.

At her recent retirement celebration, Jaynes was also presented with the Governor's Longleaf Pine Award. The Order of the Long Leaf Pine, one of the most prestigious awards presented by the Governor of North Carolina, is awarded to individuals who have a proven record of extraordinary service to the state. Contributions to their communities, extra effort in their careers, and many years of service to their organizations are some of the guidelines by which recipients are selected for this award.

Jaynes began her career as a public school teacher in 1974 after earning her Bachelor's degree at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. In 1983, CCC&TI hired Jaynes to teach Basic Skills courses in local furniture factories as a part-time instructor. Four years later, Jaynes was appointed to lead a partnership between Broyhill Industries and CCC&TI's Basic Skills department to help improve reading levels among factory employees. "The effort endured for more than 10 years and saw hundreds of students improve their reading skills and obtain a secondary credential," said Jaynes.

In 1998, the college's Basic Skills Division was expanded. "Thanks to the vision of [College President] Dr. Ken Boham, this seminal event provided a structure for the department that resulted in a staff with great longevity at the institution," said Jaynes. "Over time, we grew a department that has been recognized across the state for excellence, innovation and integrity."

Jaynes was named Department Chair of Basic Skills in 2004 and has served in that capacity for the last 10 years.

In her 30 years at the college, Jaynes has seen a number of changes in how students are reached and how needs are met, citing several innovative programs over the years including the college's Family Resource Center, Compass Program and Dual Enrollment or Pathways Programs. In addition, the department and its employees have received a number of accolades with Jaynes at the helm. "My goal when I assumed the position of Department Chair was to make sure that there was no one in the state who did not know and respect the Basic Skills programs at Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute. I wanted this program to be the best there is and for Caldwell to be one of the top 'go-to' programs for how a high quality program operates," said Jaynes.

Many would say that Jaynes achieved that goal as evidenced by the fact that since 2004, the department has been recognized as "The Outstanding Basic Skills Program" for the state twice, it has produced two Students of the Year, two Staff of the Year, two Toyota National Family Literacy Teachers of the Year, and a number of students who have presented keynote speeches at national conferences. In addition, CCC&TI's College and Career Readiness staff members are in demand as trainers and presenters in national, state and regional venues and many curricula developed at CCC&TI are in use nationally.

Asking what she would miss most about CCC&TI was like opening a flood gate holding back three decades of stories and experiences with colorful characters, dedicated educators and successful students. Stories included a student who came to class in a ninja costume; a graduation speaker who had found her way to class after writing the contact number for CCC&TI in the dust on her car's dashboard; field trips with students; special parties for students earning their U.S. citizenship; fundraising efforts for students in need; and, of course, annual graduation ceremonies celebrating the accomplishments of the thousands of students who have earned a credential through College and Career Readiness courses at CCC&TI. "It has been one of my life's great pleasures to serve the students at Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute. From the moment I walked into my first class, I knew this was the 'fit' of a lifetime, and from that time I have never felt like an employee, I have felt like a partner in the effort to create opportunities for students to reach their full potential."

In her retirement, Jaynes hopes to travel, garden and be creative, while spending time at her homes in Lenoir and Virginia. Jaynes also serves on several local boards and will continue her civic and volunteer work in the community. "I plan on doing whatever strikes my fancy," she said. "And not looking back."

CCC&TI congratulates Beverly Jaynes on her upcoming retirement.

CCC&TI Students Study Abroad in England and Ireland

A group of 18 students and employees from Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute recently travelled to England and Ireland for a study abroad tour.

The group flew from Charlotte to London's Heathrow Airport and started the experience with a tour of Oxford University. Over the next five days, the group visited numerous attractions including the Tower of London, the Winston Churchill War Museum, Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, the National Gallery and the London Eye. The group also enjoyed a boat ride on the Thames River to Big Ben and the Houses of Parliament. Many took an afternoon trip to visit Canterbury Cathedral.

CCC&TI History Instructor Kathy Cloer, who led the trip along with Religion and Philosophy Instructor Frankie Kelly, said that the London experience included many firsts for the student travelers. Cloer said that students enjoyed all of the attractions in the area but "most travelers agreed that one of the most enjoyable evenings of the trip was dinner at an upscale restaurant in the Piccadilly Circus area, followed by a theater performance of 'Phantom of the Opera' at Her Majesty's Theatre."

The following days were spent in Ireland where Kelly said travelers were treated to a completely different type of experience. "The next four days in Ireland were a contrast to London in that the experience was more about countryside and people rather than city sights," said Kelly. "After arriving in the city of Dublin where we first visited the National Museum of Ireland, visits were made to ancient sites including the passage tombs of Knowth that pre-date the pyramids of Egypt by 500 years." Students hiked the Aran Islands where a local archaeologist talked about the islands' history and significance. Students also visited Galway, Kylemore Abbey and enjoyed a guided tour of the poet Yeats' country in Sligo and learned about the Irish Potato Famine from a local historian.

Overall, students who were taking the trip as part of the Humanities 180 course, said this was a great learning experience. "I can honestly say I had the best time of my life in these short 10 days away from the United States," said student Katherine West. "This trip has shown me what life is about. Whether it be traveling to a different country or stepping outside my comfort zone and meeting new people and trying new things, there is more to living than just waking up every morning and going to school, coming home and watching television...I believe that I am a new person because of this. What everyone said was right; studying abroad certainly has changed my outlook on everything!”

Cloer and Kelly agree that this type of study experience can be invaluable to students. “Certainly international travel gives a student a perspective on the world that nothing else can. Travelers, particularly first-time international travelers, begin as students of CCC&TI and become students of the world,” said Cloer. “They experience the richness and beauty of another culture that ultimately contributes to the added appreciation and understanding of one’s own cultural heritage.”

CCC&TI Offers New Industrial Maintenance Technology Program

Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute’s Corporate and Continuing Education Department is offering a new Industrial Maintenance Technology Program on the Caldwell Campus in Hudson.

This program will prepare students for entry-level employment in the industrial maintenance field. Areas of training covered will be safety, blueprint and schematic reading, mechanical systems, plumbing, heating, ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC), electrical systems including programmable logic controller or (PLC) systems and motor controls, and hydraulics and pneumatics.

The program will also include 40 hours of HRD training at the beginning of the program that will allow participants to obtain their Career Readiness Certificate. Participants will have the opportunity to obtain their forklift licenses, 10-hour OSHA card in General Industry and a Universal Refrigerant card approved by the EPA.

According to Jeff Holman, Vocational and Technical Director at CCC&TI, job opportunities are currently available in the area for those with these types of qualifications. “There is currently a shortage of individuals to fill Industrial Maintenance Technician positions,” said Holman. “Specialized knowledge is required to fill the positions and companies often have a difficult time replacing an aging workforce.” Holman says that this program was developed using input from local employers and will provide students with specific skills needed to fill local job opportunities.

The Career Pathways module of the class begins Sept. 8. Class will be held from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. with a break from 5 to 6 p.m. Students must earn at least a Silver level Career Readiness Certificate to continue in the program. Cost for the course is $362.

For more information or to register, call Jeff Holman at 828-726-2242 or email jholman@cccti.edu.

CCC&TI Offers New Healthcare Technology Program

Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute’s Corporate and Continuing Education Department is now offering a new Healthcare Technology Program that integrates a series of skills training courses into a single course for health care occupations and gives graduates multiple skills and prepares them to earn three health care industry-specific credentials.

The course prepares students to sit for exams in Nurse Aide I, Phlebotomy and Medication Aide. Classes begin Sept. 30 and are held Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. with a break from 12 p.m. to 1 p.m. and on Fridays from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. Cost for the program is $181.

Debbie Smith, Coordinator of Health Services at CCC&TI, says that local employers are excited about the program and having more qualified candidates. The feedback she’s received from local health care agencies has been very positive. “I’ve heard from several local employers who believe that this program will be an effective and beneficial program for the industry and that it will lead to higher earnings for our graduates,” said Smith. “No matter the economy, health care is and always has been in high demand. It is important to remember that the health care jobs of tomorrow belong to those who prepare themselves today.”

For more information or to register, contact Health Services Coordinator Debbie Smith at dsmith@cccti.edu or call 828-726-2319.

J.E. Broyhill Civic Center Welcomes Bluegrass Legend Ralph Stanley

Legendary bluegrass artist Dr. Ralph Stanley will grace the stage of Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute's J.E. Broyhill Civic Center on Saturday, Sept. 20 at 7:30 p.m.

When legends come to mind there is one star that shines above them all, the legendary icon Dr. Ralph Stanley. With a career spanning six decades and countless awards, Stanley has sealed his place in music history as one of the most influential artists of all time. Despite announcing his retirement last year, Stanley is still going strong and will once again grace the Civic Center stage with his unique and haunting talent for bluegrass and mountain music. In Dr. Stanley's own words, "God has had his hand on my career for the past 68 years. It's up to him when I will quit. I have no plans of slowing down. I love my fans, and I love performing."

Born in 1927 in Big Spraddle Va., Ralph Stanley was the second child of Lucy Jane and Lee Stanley. In 1946 along with his older brother Carter Stanley, they formed the legendary Stanley Brothers duo. The Stanley Brothers and the Clinch Mountain Boys became one of the most popular brother acts in Country Music history. The Stanley Brothers traveled together for 20 years recording some of the most mournful mountain songs to date. Their catalog of songs includes "Angel Band", "Rank Strangers," "Little Maggie" and the famed "Man of Constant Sorrow."

Tragedy struck the Stanley Brothers on Dec. 1st 1966 with the untimely passing of 41-year-old Carter Stanley. Disheartened and discouraged with his brother's death, Ralph Stanley pressed on by faith in God and support of his family, friends and fans.

Some of Country and Bluegrass music's biggest stars came from Stanley's band, including Ricky Skaggs, Larry Sparks and the late Keith Whitley. In 1976, Stanley received an honorary doctorate of music from Lincoln Memorial University in Harrogate, Tenn. In 1984 Dr. Ralph Stanley was the Recipient of the "National Heritage Award" given by President Ronald Reagan. In 1992, Stanley was inducted into the "International Bluegrass Music Hall of Honor." In 2000, he was inducted into the Grand Ole Opry.

In 2002, Stanley received his first ever Grammy Award for Best Male Country Vocal Performance of the haunting rendition of "Oh Death" that was featured in the movie and soundtrack of "O Brother Where Art Thou." In 2006, he received the Living Legend award from the Library of Congress and National Medal of Arts given by President George W. Bush.

With awards and accolades too numerous to list, Ralph Stanley has sealed his place as a legend in his own time. Don't miss Dr. Ralph Stanley at the J.E. Broyhill Civic Center on Saturday, Sept. 20. Tickets for the show are $24 plus tax. CCC&TI student tickets are $12 plus tax with a valid student identification card. For more information, or for tickets, call the Civic Center Box Office at 828-726-2407 or visit www.broyhillcenter.com.
