Cobras: Gearing Up for a Great Season

CCC&TI Cobra Men’s Basketball Team and Cobra Women’s Basketball Team begin conference play in November. At the helm this year for the Men’s team is Jamison McIver, who took over as head coach in 2018 after Matt Anderson was named CCC&TI Athletic Director. The Women’s team will take the court under the direction of Head Coach Richie Covington who’s spent the last year and a half recruiting and laying the groundwork for a successful season.

Following are the rosters for both teams and a schedule of upcoming home games. Cobra home games are free and open to the public. Come out and support your Caldwell Cobras! (For more info and a complete schedule, visit www.cccti.edu/gocobras.

GO COBRAS!
27 Students Inducted into National Honor Society

In a recent ceremony, 27 Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute students were inducted into the Phi Theta Kappa International Honor Society for the Two Year College.

Phi Theta Kappa was founded in 1918 by presidents of two-year colleges in Missouri. The founders were seeking to recognize scholastic achievement by their students, and to establish a common purpose and standard for honors organizations on their different campuses. The founders chose to model their new Society after the prestigious senior honor society, Phi Beta Kappa. The name “Phi Theta Kappa” was taken from the initial letters of the three Greek words meaning “wisdom,” “aspiration” and “purity.”

CCC&TI's chapter of Phi Theta Kappa (PTK) called the Alpha Lambda Pi Chapter, works to promote the intellectual atmosphere of CCC&TI. Students can become eligible to join this exclusive honor society if they achieve and maintain at least a 3.5 grade-point-average in their college level courses.

CCC&TI President Dr. Mark Poarch welcomed students and those in attendance for the ceremony. Poarch congratulated students on earning the honor of membership in Phi Theta Kappa and encouraged students to continue their pursuit of excellence as both students and citizens. “Starting tonight with this honor is the expectation that you will become the leaders of tomorrow. You are laying the foundation to grow as scholars and leaders,” said Poarch.

During the ceremony, officers for PTK were also recognized. This year’s officers are President Makaiah Lynn, Vice President Samantha Barger, Secretary Sierra Lynn and Public Relations Chair Stacey Price.

Also during the ceremony, Chapter Faculty Advisors Heather Wright and Laura Wollpert were honored with a citation from the National Phi Theta Kappa Board of Directors in recognition of their 15 years of service with the organization.

Medical Assisting Earns National Accreditation

Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute’s Medical Assisting program has earned accreditation from the Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Education Programs (CAAHEP).

CAAHEP is the largest programmatic accreditor in the health science field. In collaboration with its Committees on Accreditation, CAAHEP reviews and accredits more than 2,100 educational programs in 30 health science occupations. CAAHEP accredited programs are assessed on an ongoing basis to assure that they meet the standards and guidelines of each profession.

CCC&TI added the Medical Assisting program in 2014. The program prepares students for work as multi-skilled health care professionals. Graduates are qualified to perform administrative, clinical and laboratory procedures in a variety of ambulatory care facilities including doctor’s offices, outpatient facilities and urgent care facilities. Students are trained to do a variety of tasks in these environments including assisting with examinations, performing routine laboratory procedures, administration of medication, coding and processing insurance accounts, computer operations and much more.

The accreditation is the result of an extensive and detailed self-study conducted by CCC&TI’s program administrators along with a site visit made on behalf of the Medical Assisting Educational Review Board by three peer reviewers.

Students who graduate from CCC&TI’s program receive an Associate in Applied Science degree and also qualify to sit for the certification exam administered by the American Association of Medical Assisting, the gold standard of certifications for medical assisting. Students must graduate from an accredited medical assisting program prior to taking the exam.

Medical Assisting Program Director Melinda Laws says that the accreditation is a great achievement for the program and will also be a great help to graduates as they look to start their careers in the medical field. “Achieving medical assisting programmatic accreditation proves we can lay excellent groundwork for student success and then stand back and let them shine,” said Laws. “Accreditation means that employers will recognize the quality of their training, while a certification gives them a nationally recognized credential that will help them land the best opportunities in the field.”

To enroll in CCC&TI’s Medical Assisting Program or other programs, call 828-726-2200 (Caldwell), 828-297-3811 (Watauga) or visit www.cccti.edu.

NC Community College System Conference

CCC&TI was well-represented at the 2018 North Carolina Community College System Conference held October 7-9 in Raleigh. On Sunday afternoon, Oct. 7, CCC&TI’s Culinary Arts students and chef instructors showcased their skills with a display based on Dr. Seuss’ “The Cat in the Hat” featuring a variety of small bites and an impressive array of edible art. “Throughout the reception, the CCC&TI display captured everyone’s attention and had the longest lines,” said Alison Beard, a CCC&TI staffer who attended the conference and the reception. “Everyone was commenting on how impressive their display was and how much they loved the food, especially the ice cream.”

Several CCC&TI staff and faculty members also presented and led workshops on Monday and Tuesday at the conference. On Monday, Shari Brown, Academic Readiness and Support/Family Resource Center Director and Melissa Darling, ESL Director presented “Promoting Student Success through Micro Robotic Bugs” which focused on the use of Hexbugs in the classroom to teach about STEM-related careers and concepts.

Also on Monday, Mathematics Instructor Caleb Marsh presented “First-Year Mathematics at the Community College: A Multilevel Approach.” Dr. Marsh presented his findings on effective methods used as predictive performance indicators for first-year community college students. These indicators can be used for more accurate student advising and to inform academic support mechanisms and policies at both secondary and post-secondary levels of public instruction.

On Tuesday, Distance Learning Administrator Kristin Harrison presented “Enhanced Online Learning Using the Personalized Learning Designer in Moodle.” Harrison’s presentation gave an overview of using Moodle’s Personalized Learning Designer tool to help personalize the online classroom and enhance students’ experience in distance learning courses to keep them engaged and up-to-date with course material.

The NC Community College System Conference is held every other year and offers an opportunity for community college employees from across the state to network, share ideas, discuss best practices and hear from system leaders. This year’s theme was “We are 58 Strong” and featured an keynote address from the newly appointed system president, Peter Hans.
CCC&TI Students Invited to Submit Projects for Research Expo

CCC&TI’s Research Expo Committee invites students to submit projects for the upcoming Research Expo. Students can submit original projects in three categories: Models, Original Research and Literature Review/Informational Posters. Cast prizes will be awarded to the top three entrants in each category in the amount of $100 for first place, $50 for second place and $25 for third place. Projects must be approved by instructors and brought to the Library no later than 9 a.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 4 for sign-in and set-up. Judging will take place on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 4. Winners will be announced during the Expo event on Wednesday, Dec. 5 at 10:15 a.m. For more information on submitting your project for the expo and the competition, see an instructor or visit the Caldwell Campus Library.

The Research Expo will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 5 in the Caldwell Campus Library from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The event will include refreshments, a famous scientist/researcher costume contest at 12 p.m., free refreshments and an opportunity to view all of the submitted projects. The event is free and open to all students.

Walmart Community Grant

Caldwell Community College and Technical Institute was recently awarded $500 from Walmart’s Community Grant Program. The award will help fund student tutoring services in the Academic Support Center.

“We appreciate Walmart’s support and value their partnership in creating new opportunities for student success in Caldwell and Watauga counties,” Poarch said.
